WOMEN'S AND GENDER STUDIES

WGS 3214 (CRN 90386): GLOBAL FEMINISMS*
"The central objectives of the course are: to acquire a theoretical understanding of 'feminisms' and feminist perspectives in particular social, political, economic, and cultural contexts. Is there such a thing as 'global feminisms' or should we say 'feminisms, globally?' We begin with a few (but far from comprehensive) diverse voices addressing feminism, generally, issues and contexts (e.g. in education, and Islam). We then read and discuss feminist perspectives, globally, on experiences related to the pandemic; in environmental initiatives and resistance; and conclude with putting transnational feminism theory to work, in different contexts."
